Sir,

I am directed to state that the Superintendent Mysore Jail, reports that Prisoner No. 2629 named Joseph alias Josay, who was sentenced to two years rigorous imprisonment on the 27th September 1892, had been suffering from a large Ulcer in his left foot since 19th February 1894, and that it has now terminated in Leprosy, which has already brought about the mutilation of his toes, loss of sensation in his extremities, and a considerable swelling of his lower limbs. Leprosy being a contagious decease, I am directed to request that the Government will be pleased to sanction his immediate transfer from the Mysore Jail to the Leper Asylum at Bangalore, where he shall have to spend the unexpired portion of his sentence

The Jail manual does not contain a provision in this behalf.

The Refuge Camp is intended to keep temporarily persons affected by contagious diseases.

The case of a leper appears distinct & can be better treated for his malady in an institution opened for that purpose with the necessary paraphernalia. Orders solicited

Where is the provision for this in the Jail Manual.

Why not send the man to "Refuge Camp" where is a contagious diseases shed constructed & maintained outside the town for such cases. by the

Sir,

With reference to the second para of Government Proceedings № 1365-6 dated 20th July 1894, 981 I am directed to state that the reference to Government about the transfer of Prisoner Joseph, suffering from Leprosy, from the Mysore Jail to the Leper Asylum, was made under Notification by Government of India Foreign Department № 182 J, dated 8th Nov 1878, which provides that the sanction of the Chief Commissioner (Local Govermt) is necessary to transfer a convict from one place of confinement to another. This information was already furnished in this office № 877 dated 13th February 1894.

2. I am further directed to state that the Superintendent Mysore Jail, reports that the Refuge Camp has only partially been built, and that
